OSI ANNOUNCES STRATEGIC ACQUISITION BY HARRIS CORPORATION

New deal expands OSi offerings and compliments Harris Next-Generation H-Class™ Total Content Delivery Platform

Kansas City, Missouri—May, 2006—Harris Corporation (NYSE: HRS) has announced a definitive agreement to acquire Optimal Solutions, Inc (OSi). Harris Corporation, headquartered in Melbourne, Florida, is an international communications and information technology company with annual sales of over $3 billion and a market presence in more than 150 countries. The unmatched scalability of OSi's Windows®-based platform to support a single call-letter station or the largest station groups and network/affiliate relationships with one software installation is the main reason for the agreement.

The agreement provides clients with new total content delivery tools to enhance their presence in the broadcast business. In addition to OSi's innovative software solutions, clients will have access to Harris' best-in-class assured communications™ products, systems, and services. The Harris' resources will be provided to clients with no disruption to current OSi services and products.

"The acquisition of OSi will further strengthen our portfolio and commitment to provide Total Content Delivery solutions to the industry," said Howard Lance, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Harris Corporation. "OSi expands our capabilities in enterprise-wide software for managing and scheduling advertising and programming for broadcasters, and complements the Harris next-generation H-Class™ platform." The H-Class™ platform will serve the diverse business models of broadcast networks, cable networks and media content providers as well as the emergence of new services such as IPTV, mobile TV, and on-demand video delivery.

"The combination of OSi and Harris will offer the industry unprecedented value — across the widest range of customers and business models," said Ed Adams, president of OSi. "We are proud to add our software offering and talent to the Harris team. Both customers and employees will benefit from the size and resources of Harris, and the long-term commitment Harris has made to the media industry."
